Dear Sirs,

The recent publication, 'Ireland's Marine Strategy Framework Directive Implementation' states :

'Good environmental status (GES) is defined as 'the environmental status of marine waters where these provide ecologically diverse and dynamic oceans and seas which are clean, healthy and productive within their intrinsic condition, and the use of the marine environment is at a level that is sustainable, thus safeguarding the potential for users and activities by current and future generations''.

The Dun Laoghaire Fisherman's Group wish to lodge an objection in the strongest possible terms to the granting of a Dumping at Sea Permit to Dublin City Council for the dumping at sea of spoil generated by the proposed Long Sea Outfall Tunnel project. As Fishermen and environmental protectors through sustainable fishing practices, any move to foul the waters of the bay would have serious consequences on water quality, sea life, could pose a health hazard and runs the risk of damaging potential heritage sites on the foreshore and in submerged locations.

We wish therefore to lodge a formal objection based on the above and would like to be kept informed of any future developments regarding this application.

Yours Sincerely,

The Dun Laoghaire Fishermans Group

Please be advised that this is not the website or address for submissions in relation to Dublin City Council's Application for a Permit under the Dumping at Sea Acts. The Competent (Consenting) Authority in respect of these Acts is the Environmental Protection Agency [EPA] and objections must be made to the EPA in accordance with statutory requirements/procedures. For your information, the link below brings you to the page on the EPA Website dealing with this application:
