Dear Mr. O'Mahony,

I refer to your recent email addressed to Laura Burke and Lorna Dempsey and respond as follows:

1: Please provide a copy of the summons served by the Agency to Roche Ireland /Syntex referred to in the "Memorandum to Each Director" of the 4 November 1996 ,relating to nine breaches of its IPC licence.

The Agency's legal advisor does not have a copy of the summons in this matter as the legal files dating back as far as 1996 have been destroyed. The Agency does not have a copy of this summons.

2: Please advise who negotiated and authorised the summons reduction from nine breaches to two breaches on behalf of the Agency and on behalf of Roche Ireland/ Syntex.

All negotiations regarding the summons are carried out between the legal advisors for both parties. The decision to reduce the number of charges was made in line with the management structure of the Agency at that time.

3: Please provide a copy of the pleadings as presented to Ennis District Court on the 13 December 1996.

There are no copy pleadings for this case.

2: Please provide where applicable, copies of any other summons served by the Agency on either Roche Ireland Ltd and/or Syntex at its Clarecastle facility from commencement of operations.

The Agency did not issue any further proceedings against the Companies.

I hope this is of assistance to you.

Regards,

Teresa Roche,
