I'm writing as I cannot get over the proposal to dump close to 9.7 million tonnes of dredge into the bay.

When one considers that this is an UNESCO site it flies in the face of all common sense and brings home the message it could only be allowed happen in Ireland.

This is a major area for marine life which is now under threat. It is crucial that some solution is found so that we don't destroy what we have on our doorstep.

Yours sincerely,
