I am not against progress for Dublin Port or for Ireland but I am a surfer and more importantly a sea swimmer that uses the waters of Dublin Bay and the surrounding area on a weekly basis. I get the water in my mouth, and during our open sea swimming races if its choppy I swallow the sea water. So far so good. I have never had a problem. Dumping that dredged waste worries me. Please make sure you are not ruining a perfectly good resource while trying to expand.

Yours sincerely,
