Dublin Bay is a Special Area of Conservation with UNESCO Biosphere designation. Dublin Port Company's 'Dumping at Sea' permit application is in complete conflict with an area of such importance.

As a young adult who walks the Sutton Howth environs regularly, I am extremely concerned that such work as sought for this permit will negatively affect the sea mammals, bird colonies.....who live there. To dump soils with known heavy metal contaminants is yet another red flag.

I'm asking you the Environmental Protection Agency to protect this coastal amenity from such destruction for my and future generations.

Yours faithfully,
Fionnán O'Connor
