I write to you to express my concern and opposition at the recent proposal of Dublin Port to undertake a dredging project that will see 9.7 million tonnes of dredge waste into Dublin Bay.

I think from an environmental prospective, we have to be conscious of the negative effects this will have on the plant and wildlife in the area.

The idea of our coastline being irreversibly altered only should appall every Dubliner.

From a selfish viewpoint, as a commuter, I don't wish anyone, many of whom it is their only transport option, to be forced to endure the dreadful smell and be witness to the awful after effects on the environment.

It will be a daily reminder of how we failed on the way to and from work and further cement the negative stereotype that Dublin is a filthy city.

Yours sincerely,

Stephen Markham
