To whom it may concern,

I am writing to express my deep concern regarding the air quality in the Ferrybank area, Waterford.

Despite being in 2022, a landmark year wherein the worldwide governments have committed to decrease the CO2 emissions to reach a sustainable level, we, citizens of Ferrybank, are still forced to put in writing our feelings of distress due to the current situation in the area caused by the fetid odours we inhale on a daily basis.

Air is a common good, hence belonging to the people. It is composed of certain elements that allow us to be alive, to have liquid water, to absorb ultraviolet radiations, and to retain the greenhouse effect.

Now, bombarding this uncontaminated good with components that do not pertain to its nature, not only is a criminal act against the Ferrybank citizens, but also against Mother Nature herself.

The stench exhaled by the ABP plant renders our common actions, such as walking outside, having the youth playing around, insupportable! Alas, this occurs several times a day.

Having said that, I hereby ask that an environmental impact study is carried out to stop this atrocious situation, as the air we breathe in belongs to everybody, and not just to the above mentioned plant to fulfil their economic interests.

Regards,

A citizen of Ferrybank.
