

J Accident Prevention & Emergency Response

The principle concern is in the handling of the diesel and fuel on-site.

At the present they are not stored on-site. This is for practical reasons, but it also provides additional safety regarding accidents.

When the fuelling of plant vehicles is being carried out on-site, the vehicles are located a minimum distance away from the watercourses. This eliminates the danger of spillage from finding its way to the watercourses.

*For inspection purposes only.
Consent of copyright owner required for any other use.*