Government's Arguments For Water Charges 'Do Not Stand Up' - Stanley

Sinn Fin spokesperson on Environment, Community and Local Government, Brian Stanley TD has claimed the government's attempts to introduce water charges is ill thought out and doomed to failure.

Responding to the launch of the Report on Water Provision by the Joint Committee on Environment, Deputy Stanley said: Sinn Fein made a full and detailed submission to the consultation process, in our submission we clearly outlined the reasons why we opposed the installation of domestic water meters and the imposition of water charges. "The government's arguments in favour of water rates simply do not stand up. The evidence indicates that the establishment of Irish Water and the introduction of water rates is more about privatisation than about conservation. Water meters and water charges do not encourage conservation, he said.

'Sinn Féin is calling for the establishment of a National Water Sector Framework Team. This team would oversee governance of the water sector and capital investment for the sector. We support the introduction of district metering which is far more effective and cost effective than installing domestic water meters in every household. 'This allows for local authorities to monitor water usage and authorities to monitor water usage and leakage at neighbourhood level. According to the Irish Academy of Engineers the cost of meter installation will be at least €500 million. This €500 million would fund the water conservation strategy for six years. It would be far more appropriate to invest the £500 million in water conservation rather than meter installation. Minister for Environment, Phil Hogan, has failed at every opportunity to outline how much it will cost to establish Irish Water. At a time when people are faced with extra charges. will cost to establish Irish Water. At a time when people are faced with extra charges, extra taxes and cuts to public services it is reckless in the extreme to give Minister Hogan a blank cheque to establish and run Irish Water. The minister must explain under what rainbow he hopes to find this funding. In conclusion, Deputy Stanley said, 'the government attempts to impose water charges will be met with strong resistance from household and it is doomed to failure.'

Further 25% Drop In Offaly House Building Activity - CIF

There was also a decrease in the twelve month period up to March 2012, with 131 houses commenced in Offaly, compared with 157 houses commenced in the twelve months leading up to March 2011. This represented a fall of 26 houses being commenced between the two twelve month periods.

In the same period there was a decrease in the number of house completions with 28 units being completed in Offaly in the first quarter, compared to 37 during the same period in 2011. This resulted in a drop of 24% in the year on year comparison.

Speaking about the statistics, CIF Director Hubert Fitzpatrick said, 'The latest statistics reveal that the level of new house building activity remains severely depressed, which points to a further sharp decline in output for 2012 in Offaly. Given the downturn in the house building activity nationally that is not a surprise.

'Most of the houses being built or which were recently completed in Offaly are one off units. Since the economic downturn began this has become more common practice, with most house building activity nationally being based on one off units,' he Based on the statistics for Offaly and the rest of the country, the CIF believes that there will now only be a total of 7,500-8,000 house unit completions this year. This would mark another significant drop in activity.

Between Census 2006 and Census 2011, the number of households increased by 205,700 households, or around 41,140 nationally per annum over the five year.

nationally per annum over the five year period.

Taking into account demographics and the rate of new household formation, CIF estimates that the sustainable demand for new homes will be 25,000 units annually.

This main emphasis on demand will be in the greater metropolitan areas as soon as confidence is restored and an active mortgage market exists,' Mr. Fitzpatrick concluded.

The principal class of activity according to the Fourth Schedule of the Waste Management Acts 1996 to 2011 will be as follows:

- "R 1. Use principally as a fuel or other means to generate energy: This includes incineration facilities dedicated to the processing of municipal solid waste only where their energy efficiency is equal to or above:
- 0.60 for installations in operation and permitted in accordance with applicable Community acts before 1 January 2009,
- 0.65 for installations permitted after 31 December 2008, using the following formula, applied in accordance with the reference document on Best Available Techniques for Waste Incineration: Energy efficiency (Ep-(Ef+Ei)/(0.97xEw+Ef)"

Company Registration No. 465847

The following other activities will also take place at the site:

Fourth Schedule

"R 12. Exchange of waste for submission to any of the operations numbered R 1 to R 11 (if there is no other R code appropriate, this can include preliminary operations prior to recovery including pre-processing such as, amongst others, dismantling, sorting, crushing, compacting, pelletising, drying, shredding, conditioning, repackaging, separating, blending or mixing prior to submission to any of the operations numbered R1 to R11)."

"R 13. Storage of waste pending any of the operations numbered R 1 to R 12 (excluding temporary storage (being preliminary storage according to the definition of 'collection' in section 5(1)), pending collection, on the site where the waste is produced)."

A copy of the waste licence application and such further information relating to the application as may be furnished to the Agency in the course of the Agency's consideration of the application will, as soon as practicable after receipt by the Agency, be available for inspection or purchase, at the headquarters of the Agency at Johnstown Castle Estate, Co. Wexford.

The application is being accompanied by an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) in accordance with Article 13 of the aforementioned Regulations (S.I. 495 of 2004). The EIS will also be available for inspection or purchase at the headquarters of the Agency.
