Early New Year arrival date for the latest Seat

SEAT Ireland has announced that the new 4WD Leon X-Perience will arrive in Ireland in early 2015.

The Volkswagen Group brand also confirmed pricing and specification for the latest addition to the Leon range, which is available to order now from dealers nationwide.

The new lifestyle estate which comes with permanent four-wheel-drive has a starting price of €32,495. With 4WD and extra ground clearance, the Leon X-Perience is suitable for the harshest of weather conditions.

Similar to the Seat Leon ST, it is equipped with 587 litres of luggage space, retaining all of the space and practicality of the ST.

The new model, however, has a more robust look with protection mouldings on the door sills and wheel arches in addition to aluminium touches for the rear bumper and lower front spoiler.

Also included are integrated fog lamps and twin chrome tailpipes, together with substantial air intakes at the front.

In addition to 4WD and extra ground clearance, the Leon variant also offers all-road suspension, intelligent EDS dynamic control and an extended electronic differential lock (XDS) for better traction when cornering.

The Leon X-Perience comes with a choice of two models initially, the 2.0 litre TDI 150bhp 4WD which costs €32,495, and the 2.0 litre TDI 184bhp 4WD DSG for €35,495. All models come as standard with 17" alloy wheels, rear park distance control, cruise control and 5" colour touch-screen with USB/SD/Bluetooth phone and audio streaming.

There are also sport seats with unique upholstery, leather steering wheel, gear knob and handbrake are available along with two-zone Climatronic air conditioning.

The line-up is set to expand in the latter half of 2015 with a 1.6 litre TDI two-wheel-drive version which is expected to come in at under €30,000.

Entry price of €15,495 for new Skoda Fabia Combi revealed

THE new Škoda Fabia Combi, presented alongside the brand new Fabia at the Paris Motor Show in September, will launch in Ireland on 9th February.

Prices for the new car have been confirmed with all model variants receiving specification enhancements with some model versions even decreasing in price. The entry price for the Fabia Combi is €15,495 for the 1.0 litre, 75bhp Active model. The direct price comparison over the new Fabia hatch model remains at €700.

Since its debut back in 2000, over 3.4 million Fabia vehicles have been sold worldwide with 1.1 million in the Combi range. Skoda, having traditionally held the number one slot in this segment in both Ireland and Europe, plans to continue this trend with the new third generation model.

The new Fabia's style echoes that of other models in the range and hints at the future direction of the brand. Compared to its predecessor, the new Fabia Combi is longer by 10mm and 90mm wider which helps the Fabia Combi to achieve class-leading luggage capacity of 530 litres, 200 litres more than the spacious hatchback.

In addition to cosmetic changes, the Fabia Combi receives a completely new line-up of petrol and diesel engines coupled to manual and DSG transmissions.

Hugh Delaney, product manager for Skoda Ireland, said the dramatic new styling of the Fabia Combi has increased the room and functionality of the car. "These cars are very popular internationally as the estate body type is often favoured over saloon or hatch in continental Europe. The Combi offers so much in space and has the same styling as the hatch and I think we will see a great deal of our old model hatch customers buying a Fabia Combi for the first time," he said.

New Suzuki Celerio goes on sale

THE new Suzuki Celerio went on sale in Ireland this week just eight months after the new model was unveiled at the Geneva Motor Show.

The Celerio is the latest of Suzuki's world strategic models and makes strong statements in styling, space, driving performance, handling as well as offering low fuel consumption and low emissions.

It retains the trademark compact car drivability, while providing an interior space that surpasses that of conventional cars in its segment as well as a class-leading luggage capacity of 254 litres.

It also boasts a new engine and new transmissions and offers best-in-class low CO2 emissions, low fuel consumption and a lively drive. All these elements have been packed into a dynamically-styled vehicle with a unique colour line-up. The latest edition to the Suzuki range, which will be manufactured at Suzuki's Rayong facility in Thailand, went on sale on Monday 1st December, with the entry GL model retailing from €11,995.

The Suzuki Celerio's entry price is €11,995.

Toyota's latest car financing options

AS part of its Personal Contract Plan (PCP) known as Toyota Flex, Toyota Ireland has announced new special reduced APR rates until 31st March 2015 that make owning a new Aygo, Yaris, Auris, Rav4, Avensis, Verso, Corolla and Prius more affordable than ever.

The new rates vary from 4.49 per cent for the Aygo to 6.49 per cent for the Rav4, Avensis, Verso, Corolla and Prius.

Toyota created the Toyota Flex plan as a way to eradicate the uncertainties associated with traditional methods of car acquisition and ownership, and make things simple and safe for customers.

The Flex plan can be completely tailored to the customer, starting with as low as a seven per cent deposit and going up to 36 per cent. In addition, customers can also unlock the value in their used car by using it as a deposit towards a new Toyota, a concept known as 'key for key'.

As well as the guaranteed low monthly payments, the local Toyota dealer will provide a guaranteed future value on all new Toyotas purchased through Flex, enabling customers to reduce their monthly repayments over a three-year period.

At the end of three years, they have three options:

- Upgrade their Toyota to a new Toyota on similar monthly repayments.
- Return the car with nothing more to pay.
- Keep the car and simply pay the guaranteed future value.

Prospective customers can learn more about Toyota Flex and work out repayments using the handy calculator at www.finance.toyota.ie
