BOXING KAMBOSOS COMES GOOD

EXCITING Cork light-middleweight Callum Walsh will make his long-awaited pro debut in the early hours of tomorrow morning. The 20-year-old, who is signed to the Freddie Roach stable, has a four rounder in California. His opponent is Earl Henry, a 32-year-old from San Diego with a record of one draw and four losses, two of them inside the distance. THERE is double involvement on a Marty McAllister show in Inverness tomorrow. Dublin bantamweight Dylan McDonagh and Limerick middleweight Jason Harty are both on the bill, but no opponents had been named at the time of going to press. DUBLIN trio Ryan O'Rourke, Tony Browne and Keane McMahon fight in Luxembourg on December 18.

GLOVE ARE YOU: George Kambosos (right) upset the odds in beating Teofimo Lopez to become the new unified lightweight champion

GEORGE KAMBOSOS BEATING Teofimo Lopez was some upset.

Australian Kambosos — a 12-1 underdog — dropped Lopez in the first round at Madison Square Garden. Although the 28-year-old from Sydney survived a 10th-round flooring himself, he got a split-decision win. In doing so, Kambosos took the WBA, IBF and WBO lightweight titles from the previously unbeaten Lopez. Lopez (24) had added the WBA and WBO titles to the IBF one he already held in beating Vasyl Lomachenko in Las Vegas in October. One judge scored the fight 114-113 in favour of Lopez but the other two officials favoured Kambosos. Lopez didn't win many fans with his protest over the decision. "I won tonight, I don't care what anybody says. I won tonight," he insisted. "I ain't no sore loser. I take my wins, I can take my losses. I'm a true champion." Knew "I came out here. I did what I had to do, and I went out there and I did my best. I don't care what anybody says. I am as real as they come. This is 'the takeover' man. We don't stop. We keep coming. I know what it is. I know how these people work. The referee knew I won tonight. Everybody knew I won. I don't believe it was a close fight at all. At the end, I scored it 10-2." In losing, his record fell to 16-1.

LO' AND BEHOLD!

Gerry CALLAN ON THE ROPES

Kambosos, who is of Greek heritage, boosted his record to 20-0 with his seventh successive away-from-home win, a journey that brought him to Connecticut, Kuala Lumpur, Las Vegas, Athens, London and New York. Now he plans to return home. Moves are afoot for him to have his first defence in his native Australia in March or April. The CommBank Stadium in the Sydney suburb of Parramatta is already being talked of as a likely venue. Before heading back Down Under, though, he is stopping off in Las Vegas this weekend to take in the WBC title defence of Devin Haney against former WBA featherweight and IBF super-featherweight title holder Joseph Diaz in the MGM Grand Garden. The WBC is the only lightweight belt Kambosos doesn't currently hold and a fight against the winner of tomorrow night's bout is his next ambition — although if such a showdown does take place, it is unlikely to fit into the Parramatta timetable. IN a second title bout on the Eddie Hearn show, Kenichi Ogawa from Japan won the vacant IBF super-featherweight crown with a unanimous-decision win over South African southpaw Azinga Fuzile. The 33-year-old Ogawa scored Tevin Farmer in Las Vegas four years ago, but saw the verdict changed to a no-contest after testing positive for Androstanediol. In winning, he raised his record to 26-1-1, plus that no-contest. He took two cards of 115-

110 and one of 114-111. Fuzile, a 25-year-old from Eastern Cape, was floored in the fifth and then twice in the final round. Beaten fair and square, he could have no complaints, with the loss only his second defeat in 17 fights. STEPHEN FULTON was a majority-decision winner in the meeting of the unbeaten super-bantamweight champions in outscoring Brandon Figueroa at the Park MGM in Las Vegas. Fulton, a 27-year-old from Philadelphia, added the WBC belt to the WBO one he already held. In the process, he raised his record to 20-0. He took two cards of 116-112 against a solitary 114-114 one. Figueroa (24) lost for the first time after 22 wins and one draw.

Brook and Khan to settle their feud

AROUND six years too late, Amir Khan and Kell Brook will finally get it on at the Manchester Arena on February 19. The two 35-year-old former champions — Khan (right) will reach that milestone next Wednesday — have finally agreed to settle their long running feud, but way too late for it to really mean anything. It will be televised on Sky Box Office and can be seen for what it is — a final payday for fading fighters. Fought Khan hasn't fought since stopping former IBF featherweight champion Billy Dib in four rounds in Jeddah in July 2019 (he has promoted two shows in Pakistan and one in Dubai in the interim). He has a 34-5 record while Brook, out of action since a four-round loss to Terence Crawford in Las Vegas just over a year ago, has a 39-3 record. Their comments at their press conference earlier this week were typical. Khan: "I'm coming levels down. The people want to see this fight, the people want to see me punch him in the face. "It's time to put him in his place and hopefully move on to bigger and better things." Brook (left): "You have never acknowledged me. I've heard you saying 'Who is Kell Brook?' "I know you know who I am. I can't wait to spark you. I am going to retire you."
